Bells, Smells and the Prix Nobel*

After April's rather whimsical foreword on the (Taco) Bells of St Laurence, this month's article begins on a much more sombre note, and the subject of chemical weapons. As I write, the international community is still scratching its collective head over how best to respond, in the longer term, to the Syrian regime's alleged chemical attack on the citizens of Douma. In some quarters of course, doubt has been cast on the accuracy and integrity of the many distressing reports, from various sources, published in the wake of the attack; and our own government's response of targeted air-strikes is being both commended and condemned in seemingly equal measure. Confusion and uncertainty reign: the political air, both at home and abroad, is thick with accusations, counter-claims, threats and rhetorical posturing. As someone once said, the first casualty of war is often the truth.

In a recent article in The Times, the historian and journalist Ben Macintyre reflected on the life and work of Fritz Haber, widely regarded as "the father of chemical warfare." During WW I, as head of the chemistry section at the German Ministry of War, Haber developed and then personally supervised the first deployment of chlorine gas as a weapon (at Ypres, in April 1915). Despite the devastating effects of this and subsequent attacks, Haber seems - publicly, at least - to have had no regrets about his work: Macintyre writes that, on the contrary, he celebrated his invention as a "higher form of killing" and referred to himself as "one of the mightiest men." Four years later, apparently turning a blind eye to the carnage he had wrought in the trenches, the Nobel organisation saw fit to award Haber the Chemistry prize for 1919 – albeit, this was for his earlier contribution to the mass production of artificial fertilisers, and not for his research on chemical weapons.

While Haber was somehow able to live with himself, one of his closest family-members was not: just a few weeks after the first gas attack at Ypres, his wife Clara committed suicide. She was herself an eminent scientist, the first woman to earn a PhD in chemistry; but (presumably) overcome by despair and revulsion, she shot herself with her husband's revolver, while he was busy hosting a celebration party in their Berlin home. Interestingly, Clara's maiden name, Immerwahr, translates into English as Ever-True; while she may not have been the first casualty of the Great War, a casualty she certainly was.

Notwithstanding the recent nerve-agent incident in Salisbury, few of us in Britain live in daily fear of large-scale chemical warfare on our own soil; the kind of gas-attacks experienced by WW I troops or by the people of Douma seemingly belong to a different world. At the same time, many people in our society do actually live in a more-or-less permanent "haze." In the work-place, at college or at home, most of us will have observed or experienced first-hand how selfishness and pride inevitably lead to hostility and entrenched positions; and how, often without warning, a dark and dangerous cloud descends, suffocating the truth, deadening our emotions, and stripping our insides of love, joy and peace.

I freely admit to being personally prone to such attacks. But as a Christian, I can also say - from personal experience and with gratitude to God - that the remedy for everyone is found in Jesus Christ. The embodiment of God's love, truth and justice, Christ died and rose again to disarm all the powers of evil (including our own self-righteousness), and to lead us out of the trenches into the fresh air of his kingdom...

With my best wishes and prayers, as ever, Revd Ken.

*Pardon my French here; but Bells, Smells and the Nobel Prize didn't have quite the same ring to it (no pun intended etc.)

Neighbourhood Plan Consultation Period

The completed Neighbourhood Plan will soon be publicised for our 6 week consultation period, during which the Plan will be available for all residents to examine. Hard copies will be available to read in locations around Appleton and Eaton including Appleton Community Shop, the Plough, the Eight Bells, the Village Hall, the tennis club and St Laurence Church.

Banners and posters will appear around the Parish to notify when the consultation period starts.

It is particularly important that as many people as possible read the Neighbourhood Plan during the 6 week consultation period, as this will be followed by the opportunity to vote in the referendum for adoption of the Plan.

KEEP FIT for the over 60's.

Appleton Village Hall on Wednesdays

between 3.30pm and 4.30pm

£5 per class

To book, contact Neeraj on 07717 346351 or just turn up.

To pick up some locally-grown plants at reasonable prices, don't miss the Club's Plant Sale on Saturday 12th May at 10.00 am in Appleton Village Hall. Club-members and others who have plants to donate for sale are asked please to bring these to the Hall between 8.30 and 9.00 am, if possible. Alternatively, they can be taken in the days leading up to the Sale to either Charles Moorley at Redcliffe House, Englands Lane or John Page at 27 Badswell Lane.

The Club's April lecture was given by Victoria Logue of Whitehall Farmhouse Plants, who spoke on "Extending the season". Victoria's lively talk was full of very practical advice, and delivered in a refreshingly forthright manner. Her top tips for amateur gardeners were to feed your plants more and to be more ruthless – in particular, get rid of plants that you don't like. (Don't just leave them in situ because they haven't died yet!)

April's meeting at 7.30 pm on Wednesday 9th May includes the Club AGM, which will be swiftly followed by Keith Harmon's talk on the intriguing subject of "Dowsing for Gardeners" which, we are assured, will include practical demonstrations. The meeting will be in Appleton School Hall. Guests are very welcome at £3 a head.

Long Close - Dog fouling

Long Close is private land with two footpaths crossing it, one from the Church and the other from Park Lane. It is used by many people to access the woods and up to now the landowners have always been tolerant of children running around (albeit everyone should stick to the footpaths and keep dogs on leads). Unfortunately, dog fouling has been a problem, eased for a while by the village volunteers installing and managing an informal dog poo bin just inside the churchyard - our thanks go out to them. Recently the problem has been noticeably worse with large deposits all over the place. The ditch is often littered with poo bags - dogs drink from this and it is only a matter of time before one is poisoned. Whoever is letting their dog foul in this area please clear up after them - they are your dogs and your responsibility. We ask any villager who sees this occurring to take a photograph and forwards it to Gary Smith at the Vale. The offender will be identified and issued with a fine. This issue has already forced one landowner to take action to restrict access to their land: let's not let a few irresponsible individuals push things so far that another feels compelled to take action we know they most certainly are trying to avoid.
