Dear Friends,

Towards the end of our family holiday in Normandy this summer, we visited Lyons-la-Forêt, a small village (pop. around 750), listed as “one of the most beautiful in France.” Especially noted for the half-timbered facades of its 18th century buildings, Lyons-la-Forêt was for a time the home of artist Paul-Emile Pissarro and of the composer Maurice Ravel. Further back in history (in 1135), King Henry I died there – apparently from food poisoning, after eating too many lampreys. (We just stuck with baguette and fromage for lunch!)

Picturesque as the houses undoubtedly are, the main purpose of our day-trip was actually to visit a particular site in the extensive beech forest by which the village is surrounded – it is called Lyons-la-Forêt for good reason. Our guide Olek, a half-French / half-Polish, London-born “local,” with an extensive knowledge of (and passion for) the work of the French Resistance during WWII, met us as arranged and drove us to our destination. Parking at the side of a narrow farm-track, it was not difficult to find the spot where, on 10th June 1944, a Lancaster Bomber from the 49th Squadron crashed into the ground, killing all six crew members on board. One of the dead was Flying Officer Hilary Daniel Clark. Hilary was my wife’s grandfather.

We had visited (and prayed and cried at) Hilary’s grave in the Bayeux War Cemetery several years before. But being at the actual crash-site this summer brought things home to us in a new way: we could not help but picture the Lancaster’s final descent into the trees, not least because four huge craters still bear testimony to where its huge Rolls Royce engines ploughed into the forest floor.

As Remembrance Sunday draws near, may I invite you to join with us in honouring all those who, like Hilary, have made the ultimate sacrifice in the defence of our nation, or in fighting for justice and freedom elsewhere. *They shall not grow old, as we that are left grow old; age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun and in the morning, we will remember them. Our short Remembrance Service at St Laurence Church will begin at 10 am on 12th November; we will then gather for an Act of Remembrance at the War Memorial from 10.45 am.

With my best wishes and prayers,

Revd. Ken

*Robert Laurence Binyon (1869-1943).

Polite Notice

It's very important that clear emergency access is always maintained to St Laurence Church. Such access – not least for emergency vehicles – is blocked when cars are parked close to either side of the gates mid-way down Church Lane.

The consequences of this if an emergency arose would be very serious and potentially life-threatening, besides totally invalidating Church insurances.

Thank you for sensible and considerate parking.

All Very Welcome!

Thank you...

So many thanks to you all for your wonderful generosity and compassion for sponsoring me for Dementia and Alzheimer Society, to do my paraglide at last after a long delay due to strong thermals and rain etc. I achieved my goal by spending an afternoon zooming around the White Horse above Warminster and enjoying the lovely countryside of Wiltshire.

We raised £20,680 which hopefully will be put towards the intense research being carried out to try to pinpoint the reason and perhaps step-stowards alleviating that so cruel and unkind affliction.

GARDENING CLUB

Flushed with the success of this year's Appleton Show in September, the Club's Show sub-committee has been at work with the early stages of planning the 2018 event. As a result, I can reveal next year's subjects in the Photography classes, which are to be:

- Close-up
- Early light or shot at dawn
- What are you wearing?
- Good order
- Face to face
- Cyclist(s).

So you now have the best part of 12 months to get snapping in order to be able to compete! And, if you favour the Cookery classes, you may like to know that there will again be an orange marmalade class and one for a fruit-flavoured liqueur. Make them now, to give time for them to mature.

The first lecture of the Club's winter series took place 11th October, when our speaker's title was 'Death in the Garden'. Michael Brown described many of the poisonous plants that we have here in the UK, some of the myths and legends that surround them, and some of the murders in which they have been implicated. It was also a salutary lesson in the value of wearing gardening gloves and other protective clothing when handling garden waste.

November's lecture will be on Wednesday 8th November, when Brian Fisher will talk on 'Edibles in the ornamental garden' at 7.30 pm in Appleton School Hall. Visitors are welcome to the lectures for a £2 charge, but membership for the whole year is only a fiver!

Appleton School and the World's Biggest Coffee Morning

Last month, Appleton School played host to a Macmillan Coffee Morning, opening its doors to parents, friends and members of the Community.

Pupils helped serve coffee and home made cakes, which went down well with the large numbers who came to support this event. Some members of the village Tennis Club enjoyed coming to the school for welcome refreshments after their match!

Over £700 was raised for Macmillan Cancer Support

Amy Carnell, Headteacher of Appleton School said:

'It was a very happy and successful event and lovely to see so many members of the local community at our school. The pupils really enjoyed helping run the morning and raising money for such a good cause

BESSELSLEIGH WOODS

Probably most people in Appleton walk in Besselsleigh Woods, especially now that access to the lock road is so restricted. It is a different sort of walking – country rather than paved road – so in the summer the growth of bracken and bramble, not to mention the invasive Himalayan balsam, tend to encroach on the paths, and in the winter everything gets a bit muddy!

The woods are owned by the Vale of White Horse District Council, but when local authority expenditure became a problem a few years ago the Vale handed over management of the woods to a voluntary group set up for that purpose. So the reason that the paths are still walkable in the summer without your being snared by brambles, and the reason some attempt is made to overcome the mud-on-footpaths problem, is that a small – very small – group of volunteers spend time trying to ensure that the woods remain accessible. But it's hard work, and not many people are doing it. The Besselsleigh Wood Group would love to persuade a few of the people who enjoy the woods to put a little time into maintaining them for the good of everybody. In the summer we hope to get people along on a Thursday evening. In the winter this isn't possible, so we are planning a few hours of weekend winter work.

From 1.30 pm until about 3.30 pm, depending on the light, we are hoping to try to do some work on the paths on two days this winter – Saturday the 11th of November and Sunday the 26th November. And after Christmas we plan to extend the hedging which we have been planting over the years on the eastern boundary of the woods. The dates for this work will be Saturday 13th January and Sunday 28th January.

If you value the woods, and have a couple of hours to spare, please try to come along. We are not only a small group, but an ageing one, and we need some help to prevent the woods from becoming too wild to be walkable.

John Page is Chairman of the Wood Group – 01865 864808. You can just turn up on the day (at the Besselsleigh entrance to the woods), or give John a ring. We would be delighted to see you or to hear from you.

APPLETON ST LAURENCE HERITAGE TRUST launches

The Living Advent Calendar: Christmas 2017

Forget the chocolate advent calendars this year, ASLHT is launching the first Living Advent Calendar in Appleton. Every evening from the 1st to the 24th of December, a different home (or village business) will unveil its very own individual advent window. A new house will be added each day, and on Christmas Eve the Church will unveil the final window.

We are looking for volunteers from throughout the village – with one important criteria: your window or display must be visible from the footpath / road. Once we have 24 agreed venues, we will produce a map and diary. The big switch on will probably be at 6pm every evening on weekdays and 5pm on Saturdays and Sundays.

Interested? Think your window would be perfect? Ideas for the design? To volunteer, please either phone Mary Carey on 07812 354496 or email her on marymcarey@btinternet.com

To see examples of advent windows Google 'living advent calendar' or check out <http://bit.ly/2xAxOgV>

Hoping we can create something very special in the village!
